Contents

Introduction  xiii

Part 1. New Needs, New Answers

1. The Decade of the Rude Awakening: The New Reality of the Nineties  1
   “The Fall of the Dinosaurs”  2
   Wake-Up Call: All Business Must Informationalize  4
   New Media Technologies and Priorities  5
   New Consumer Attitudes and Demands  10
   Rising Retail Control of the Selling Process  14
   New Advertising and Marketing Realities  23

2. Seven Keys to Business Success Today  33
   Tell, Don’t Sell  36
   Get Real  39
   Stop Wasting Money on Nonprospects  43
   Offer Gain without Pain  47
   Bringing People Together  49
   Care Enough to Put the Customer First  52
   Dare to Start Over  54

Part 2. MaxiMarketing Winners Selling Products

3. Michael Dell Sets the Pace for PCs  61
   Young Dell Goes Direct • Playing By His Own Rules • From $265 Million to $2 Billion in FourYears • The Heavy Hitters Block the Way • Targeting the Right Person in the Right Place • The Direct-Response Edge • New Channels of Distribution • Compaq and IBM Surrender • The View from Inside Dell Computer • The Dell Telecomputing Lifeline • Daring to Do the Unexpected • The Battle Rages On • Dell Stumbles on the New Playing Field • The Jury Is Out

4. Harley’s HOG Heaven
What a Difference a Decade Makes • From Close to Bankruptcy to Being Oversold • The Company That Grew with America • The Machine That Became a Way of Life • “Our Greatest Tool for Getting Close to Customers” • “Hi, My Name Is Harley. What’s Yours?” • Keeping Customers by Bringing People Together • Left-Brain and Right-Brain Creativity • A “Caring” Company Cares for Dealers, Too • Setting Sales Records with an Emphasis on “Fun and Passion”

5. LEGO Conquers the U.S.A., Brick by Brick
From False Start to Overwhelming Brand Acceptance • “Only the Best Is Good Enough” • “What Business Are You In?” • The New Way to Build Brand Equity • Doing More Than Enough • From the LEGO Builders Club to Shop-by-Mail and the LEGO Imagination Center • It’s Not What You Say It’s What You Do • The Little Plastic Block That Could—for 670,000 Shops, 125 Countries, and 200 Million Kids • “The Next Disney?”

6. The House of Seagram: Into MaxiMarketing and Beyond
The Break with the Past • Image Advertising Still Works—Sometimes • Interaction Deepens the Impression • Response Isn’t Everything • $100 Bottle of Champagne Free—Sort Of • “Won’t You Linger a Little Longer?” • A MaxiMarketing Hypothesis Becomes Reality • A Crowning Achievement: Making More by Spending Less • Pioneering a One-to-One Future in Magazine Advertising • Opening the 10-Million-Name House of Seagram Database to Dealers

7. Nestlé Baby Food: Scoring a Perfect “7” in France
Rest Stops along the Highway for Mother, Father, and Baby • “Allô Nestlé Diététique”—The Hotline for Parents • Help at Every Stage of Baby’s Development • The Competition Plays “Follow the Leader”—but Poorly • Nestlé’s Passion for Pleasing the Customer • A Demonstration of the 7 Keys to Business Success • Results Keep Getting Better and Better • Moving from 20 Percent Market Share to 43 Percent Market Share • Aberration or Early Harbinger?
8. A Daring Change in Direction from Corporate Nestlé 143
The Path Nestlé Chose • Buitoni as the Marketing Laboratory • A Dramatic Example of Existential Marketing • “You Need to Go Down to the One-to-One Level” • Making the Casa Buitoni Club Unique • From Database Building to “Datamotion” Applications • Opening Alternate Forms of Distribution • Casa Buitoni Comes to Holland • “Authentic” Replaces “Make-Believe” in Advertising • Watch for Future Developments

Part 3. MaxiMarketing Winners Selling a Service

The Little Company That Got 70,000 Times Bigger • Caring for Each Customer While Fielding 250,000 Phone Calls a Day • Always Putting the Customer First • Licking ‘em by Joining ‘em • Selling ‘em by Telling ‘em • Fishing for Business in Hundreds of Niches • Daring to Start Over Again—and Again • Power to the People—at Both Ends of the Phone Line • The Never-Ending Renewal Process • An Ever-Expanding Bottom Line

10. Ryder Turns the Business Around 171
From Double-Digit Losses to Double-Digit Gains in the First Year • Climbing the Research Ladder • The Service Wrapped around the Product • Rolling the Dice—and Rolling Out New Trucks • Turning to Double-Duty Advertising • How the Marketing Became the Message • “Yes, But Where’s the Money?” • We Care about You—and You—and You • Taking the Anxiety Out of the Family’s Move • Goodbye El-Cheapo, Hello Domino • Easy Ryder All the Way to the Bank

11. Beginning Again at Canada’s North American Life 185
What Women Wanted • Creating FNA: A Prototype “Skunkworks” Division • Meeting the Financial Needs of Career Women • The New Marketing Director Finds MaxiMarketing Really Works • The Quest for Maximized LTV • Getting the Right People Together • The New Marketing Math at Work • Buying a Big Image in a Small Area • Putting the Customer in Control • You Can’t Fake Caring • The Payback from Feedback • The “Telling, Not Selling” Model for North American

12. Amil Group: The Master MaxiMarketer of Brazil 203
Amil’s Growth Rate of 45 Percent a Year Compounded for a Decade • The Broken Down Little Hospital Where It All Began • Information-Age Marketing Ahead of Its Time • The Best-
Remembered Phone Number in Brazil • The Amil Rescue Plan: A "Caring and Daring" New Product Introduction • Conquest Marketing Using The University of California Wellness Letter • Corporate Commitment to MaxiMarketing Strategies

13. Puget Sound Bank: Marching to a Different Drummer 221

Breaking Through the Cluttered Media by Doing Good • The Puget Sound Fund: Thumbs Down on Half Measures • Making the ATM Machine a Machine for Cleaning Up the Sound • Bank Employee Beach Clean-Up Day • The Bank Branch Lobby as an Advertising Medium • The Image-Building Power of Involvement Marketing • The Result: 10 Percent to 15 Percent Traceable Growth Plus a Cleaner Environment

14. How MCI Used Corporate Jujitsu to Trip AT&T 233

MCI Dares to Launch the Database-Driven Promotion of the Century • Using AT&T's Size against Them • The "Promotion" That Got a $50 Million Direct-Response Television Budget • Member-Get-A-Member Marketing Hits the Big Time • Move Over Consumers, Here Comes "Friends of the Firm" for Business Customers • Turning Users into Advocates • Ten Million Signed Up and Still Counting • The Early Payout: An Incremental One Billion Dollars

Part 4. MaxiMarketing Winners in Retailing

15. NBO Dares to Start Over 243

Bouncing Back from a 35 Percent Slump in Profits • The Turnaround Courtesy of the U.S. Postal Service • Providing Gain without Pain to Value-Minded Shoppers • The Magic of Selecting the "Wrong" Store Location • The Trick of Steering Customers to Your "Wrong" Location • Capturing the Identity of Each and Every Customer • NBO Stops Wasting Money on Nonprospects • Running a Store Like a Mail-Order Catalog—and Reaping a Handsome Profit

16. Zellers Makes the Marketing the Message 261

The 3 "D"s of Seductive Retailing: Deference, Dollars, and Dreams • How Zellers, the Largest Discount Chain in Canada, Scores Big on Two Fronts • The Unique Selling Proposition: "The Lowest Price Is the Law" • The Extra-Value Proposition: Club Z, World's Foremost Frequent-Shoppers Program • Club Z Reaches into 63 Percent of Canadian Households • Niche Programs for Kids and Seniors • Sales Up, Profits Up, Stores Multiplying
17. Neiman-Marcus: Very Far Out Front, Very Early 269

Caring Enough to Put Their Best Customers First • An Early Entry: The 1984 Neiman-Marcus Incircle Rewards Program • Now a Second Tier Opens the Door to All Customers • Beyond Customer Satisfaction—the Cultivation of Customer Astonishment • Heirs of Club Members Have Been Known to Fight Over Incircle Points • Too Expensive to Run? Rivals Still Don’t Get It! • Growth 6 Times Bigger Than Expected

Part 5. A Global View

18. MaxiMarketing Winners around the World 277

We Live Side by Side in Today’s Global Village • The Turn Away from Mass Marketing to Individualized Marketing around the World • Benefitting from Each Other’s Experience • One for the Guinness Book of Records: Selling Guinness Irish Beer to German Tavern Owners • A New High in Total Relationship Commitment (TRC) by Lexus in Germany • Ford in Norway Finds a Daring Way to Stay in Touch with Customers and Dealers • Shiseido’s Caring Relationship with 10 Million Japanese Women • AMFB—the MaxiMarketing Miracle Maker of Malaysia • What If Your Country Still Is Without a Big Consumer Database? Learn from VTKK in Finland • HSM Cultura in Brazil—a Model MaxiMarketer for Business-to-Business Marketers to Emulate • Robert Hayes McCoy in Ireland Shows How Far the New Marketing Can Take a One-Person Operation

19. The New Power of “Caring and Daring” 299

Succeeding in a Time of Discontinuous Change • Evolutionary Change Is Out, Revolutionary Change Is In • A Seemingly Absurd Idea: Marketing to a Segment of One • Why Business Panaceas Often Fail • One More MaxiMarketing Winner Gets It Absolutely, Positively Right • Many Ad Agencies Slipping—While a Few Soar • Our Three Commandments for Maxi-Performance in the Years Ahead • Putting a “Caring and Daring” Strategy at the Heart of Your Corporate Culture • How the Keys to Success Presented Here Can Lead to Your Own Unique Success

Index 315
An Invitation from the Authors 321